Moore's, to the River Road for a short check.

The hounds were then taken to the Grantland gate for another east, and the run was continued through the Grantland property and Davies's and on to the canai, down the canai through Bolling and Westhampton to the Elver Road. After a live-minute check the hounds were taken to Westhampton Park, and the run was continued through Sydnor's to the Country Club, making about eight miles.

There were no falls to mar the afternoon, though the stiff fences and wide ditches soon caused a few, faultlessly attired, to follow the roads. E. B. Sydnor had a narrow escape on the bridge crossing the canai, that but for his presence of mind and the cleverness of his hunter might have resulted disactrously.
